REPORT ON THE ACTIVITIES OF THE COMMITTEE ON NATURAL RESOURCES 116TH CONGRESS

DECEMBER 31, 2020.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. GRIJALVA of Arizona, from the Committee on Natural Resources, submitted the following

COMMITTEE ORGANIZATION

The Committee on Natural Resources met on January 30, 2019, for an organizational meeting of the 116th Congress under the direction of Chair Raúl M. Grijalva of Arizona. The Committee membership was 45 Members with 26 Democrats and 19 Republicans.

The Committee established five subcommittees: Energy and Mineral Resources (Alan S. Lowenthal of California, Chair); Indigenous Peoples of the United States (Ruben Gallego of Arizona, Chair); National Parks, Forests, and Public Lands (Debra A. Haaland of New Mexico, Chair); Oversight and Investigations (TJ Cox of California, Chair); and Water, Oceans, and Wildlife (Jared Huffman of California, Chair).

JURISDICTION OF THE COMMITTEE

The jurisdiction of the Committee on Natural Resources, as prescribed by clause (m)(1) of Rule X of the Rules of the House is as follows:

- (1) Fisheries and wildlife, including research, restoration, refuges, and conservation.
- (2) Forest reserves and national parks created from the public domain.
- (3) Forfeiture of land grants and alien ownership, including alien ownership of mineral lands.
- (4) Geological Survey.
- (5) International fishing agreements.

(6) Interstate compacts relating to apportionment of waters for irrigation purposes.

(7) Irrigation and reclamation, including water supply for reclamation projects and easements of public lands for irrigation projects; and acquisition of private lands when necessary to complete irrigation projects.

(8) Native Americans generally, including the care and allotment of Native American lands and general and special measures relating to claims that are paid out of Native American funds.

(9) Insular areas of the United States generally (except those affecting the revenue and appropriations).

(10) Military parks and battlefields, national cemeteries administered by the Secretary of the Interior, parks within the District of Columbia, and the erection of monuments to the memory of individuals.

(11) Mineral land laws and claims and entries thereunder.

(12) Mineral resources of the public lands.

(13) Mining interests generally.

(14) Mining schools and experimental stations.

(15) Marine affairs, including coastal zone management (except for measures relating to oil and other pollution of navigable waters).

(16) Oceanography.

(17) Petroleum conservation on public lands and conservation of the radium supply in the United States.

(18) Preservation of prehistoric ruins and objects of interest on the public domain.

(19) Public lands generally, including entry, easements, and the grazing thereon.

(20) Relations of the United States with Native Americans and Native American tribes.

(21) Trans-Alaska Oil Pipeline (except ratemaking).

RULES FOR THE COMMITTEE ON NATURAL RESOURCES

U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

116TH CONGRESS

(Adopted January 30, 2019)

RULE 1. RULES OF THE HOUSE; VICE CHAIRS

(a) Applicability of House Rules.

(1) The Rules of the House of Representatives, so far as they are applicable, are the rules of the Committee on Natural Resources (hereinafter in these rules referred to as the “Committee”) and its Subcommittees.

(2) Each Subcommittee is part of the Committee and is subject to the authority, direction and rules of the Committee. References in these rules to “Committee” and “Chair” shall apply to each Subcommittee and its Chair wherever applicable.

(3) House Rule XI is incorporated and made a part of the rules of the Committee to the extent applicable.

(b) Vice Chair.—Unless inconsistent with other rules, the Chair shall designate a Vice Chair of the Committee and appoint Vice Chairs of the Subcommittees. If the Chair of the Committee or Subcommittee is not present at any meeting of the Committee or Subcommittee, as the case may be, the Vice Chair shall preside. If the Vice Chair is not present, the Ranking Member of the Majority party on the Committee or Subcommittee who is present, or the Chair's designee, shall preside at that meeting.

RULE 2. MEETINGS IN GENERAL

(a) Scheduled Meetings.—The Committee shall meet at 10 a.m. the first Wednesday of each month when the House is in session if so noticed by the Chair under Committee Rule 3(a). The Committee shall also meet at the call of the Chair subject to advance notice to all Members of the Committee. Special meetings shall be called and convened by the Chair as provided in clause 2(c)(1) of House Rule XI. Any Committee meeting or hearing that conflicts with a party caucus, conference, or similar party meeting shall be rescheduled at the discretion of the Chair, in consultation with the Ranking Minority Member. The Committee may not sit during a joint session of the House and Senate or during a recess when a joint meeting of the House and Senate is in progress.

(b) Open Meetings.—Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, and each hearing of the Committee or a Subcommittee shall be open to the public, except as provided by clause 2(g) and clause 2(k) of House Rule XI.

(c) Broadcasting.—Whenever a meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, or a hearing is open to the public, that meeting or hearing shall be open to coverage by television, radio, and still photography in accordance with clauses 2(a)(1) and 4 of House Rule XI. The provisions of clause 4(f) of House Rule XI are specifically made part of these rules by reference. To the maximum extent practicable, the Committee shall provide audio and visual coverage of each hearing or meeting for the transaction of business in a manner that allows the public to easily listen to and view the proceedings, and maintain the recordings of such coverage in a manner that is easily accessible to the public. Operation and use of any Committee internet broadcast system shall be fair, and nonpartisan, and in accordance with clause 4(b) of House Rule XI and all other applicable rules of the Committee and the House.

(d) Oversight Plan.—No later than March 1 of the first session of each Congress, the Committee shall prepare and submit its oversight plan for that Congress in accordance with clause 2(d) of House Rule X.

RULE 3. MEETING AND HEARING PROCEDURES IN GENERAL

(a) Notice and Information for Members and the Public.

(1) The Chair shall publicly announce the date, place and subject matter of a Committee hearing or meeting in accordance with clause 2(g)(3) of House Rule XI.

(2) A hearing or meeting may begin sooner if the Chair, with the concurrence of the Ranking Minority Member, determines that there is good cause to begin the meeting or hearing sooner, or if the Committee so determines by majority vote. In these cases, the Chair shall publicly announce the meeting or hearing at the earliest possible time. The Committee shall promptly notify the Daily Digest Clerk of the Congressional Record and shall promptly make publicly available in electronic form the appropriate information as soon as possible after the public announcement is made.

(3) To the extent practicable, a background memorandum prepared by the Majority staff summarizing the major provisions of any bill being considered by the Committee, including the need for the bill and its effect on current law, will be available for the Members of the Committee and the public no later than 48 hours before the meeting.

(b) Public Availability of Markup Text.—At least 24 hours prior to the markup of any legislation (or at the time of an announcement under paragraph (a)(2) above made within 24 hours before such meeting), the Chair shall cause the text of such legislation to be made publicly available in electronic form.

(c) Meetings and Hearings to Begin Promptly.—Each meeting or hearing of the Committee shall begin promptly at the time stipulated in the public announcement of the meeting or hearing.

(d) Addressing the Committee.—A Committee Member may address the Committee or a Subcommittee on any bill, motion, or other matter under consideration or may question a witness at a hearing only when recognized by the Chair for that purpose. The time a Member may address the Committee or Subcommittee for any purpose or to question a witness shall be limited to five minutes, except as provided in Committee Rule 4(f). Members shall limit remarks to the subject matter under consideration.

(e) Quorums.

(1) A majority of the Members of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for the reporting of any measure or recommendation, the authorizing of a subpoena, the closing of any meeting or hearing to the public under clause 2(g)(1), clause 2(g)(2)(A) and clause 2(k)(5)(B) of House Rule XI, and the releasing of executive session materials under clause 2(k)(7) of House Rule X. Testimony and evidence may be received at any hearing at which there are at least two Members of the Committee present. For the purpose of transacting all other business of the Committee, one-third of the Members shall constitute a quorum.

(2) When a call of the roll is required to ascertain the presence of a quorum, the offices of all Members shall be notified and the Members shall have not less than 15 minutes to prove their attendance. The Chair shall have the discretion to waive this requirement when a quorum is actually present or whenever a quorum is secured and may direct the relevant Committee staff to note the names of all Members present within the 15-minute period.

(f) Participation of Members in Committee and Subcommittees.—Any Member of the Committee may sit with any Subcommittee during any meeting or hearing, and by unanimous consent of the Members of the Subcommittee, may participate in such meeting or hearing. However, a Member who is not a Member of the Subcommittee may not vote on any matter before the Subcommittee, be counted for purposes of establishing a quorum, or raise points of order.

(g) Proxies.—No vote in the Committee or its Subcommittees may be cast by proxy.

(h) Record Votes.—Record votes shall be ordered on the demand of one-fifth of the Members present, or by any Member in the apparent absence of a quorum.

(i) Postponed Record Votes.

(1) Subject to paragraph (2), the Chair may, after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, postpone further proceedings when a record vote is ordered on the question of approving any measure or matter or adopting an amendment. The Chair shall resume proceedings on a postponed request at any time after reasonable notice, but no later than the next meeting day.

(2) Notwithstanding any intervening order for the previous question, when proceedings resume on a postponed question under paragraph (1), an underlying proposition shall remain subject to further debate or amendment to the same extent as when the question was postponed.

(3) This rule shall apply to Subcommittee proceedings.

(j) Privileged Motions.—A motion to recess from day to day, a motion to recess subject to the call of the Chair (within 24 hours), and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution if printed copies are available, are nondebatable motions of high privilege.

(k) Layover and Copy of Bill.—No measure or recommendation reported by a Subcommittee shall be considered by the Committee until two calendar days from the time of Subcommittee action. No bill shall be considered by the Committee unless a copy has been delivered to the office of each Member of the Committee requesting a copy. These requirements may be waived by a majority vote of the Committee at the time of consideration of the measure or recommendation.

(l) Access to Dais and Conference Room.—Access to the hearing rooms' daises (and to the conference rooms adjacent to the Committee hearing rooms) shall be limited to Members of Congress and employees of the Committee during a meeting or hearing of the Committee, except that Committee Members' personal staff may be present on the daises if their employing Member is the author of a bill or amendment under consideration by the Committee, but only during the time that the bill or amendment is under active consideration by the Committee. Access to the conference rooms adjacent to the Committee hearing rooms shall be limited to Members of Congress and employees of Congress during a meeting or hearing of the Committee.

(m) Cellular Telephones and other Electronic Devices.—During a meeting of the Committee, ringing or audible sounds or conversational use of cellular telephones or other electronic devices is prohibited on the Committee dais or in the Committee hearing rooms.

(n) Motion to go to Conference with the Senate.—The Chair may offer a motion under clause 1 of House Rule XXII whenever the Chair considers it appropriate.

(o) Materials for Record.—Other than witness questions for the hearing record, materials must be submitted within 10 business days following the last day of the hearing or meeting. Witness questions for the hearing record must be submitted to the relevant Full Committee staff or Subcommittee Clerk within 3 business days following the last day of the hearing. The materials submitted must address the subject matter of the hearing or meeting. Only a Member of the Committee or an invited witness may submit materials for inclusion in the hearing or meeting record.

RULE 4. HEARING PROCEDURES

(a) Written Statement; Oral Testimony.—Witnesses who are to appear before the Committee or a Subcommittee shall file with the relevant Full Committee staff or Subcommittee Clerk, at least two business days before the day of their appearance, a written statement of their proposed testimony. Witnesses shall limit their oral presentation to a five-minute summary of the written statement, unless the Chair, in consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, extends this time period. Subject to the approval of the Committee, the Chair may waive oral testimony of any witness who has submitted written testimony for the record.

In addition, a witness appearing in a nongovernmental capacity shall include a curriculum vitae and a disclosure of any Federal grants or contracts, or contracts or payments originating with a foreign government, received during the current calendar year or either of the previous two calendar years by the witness or by the entity represented by the witness and related to the subject matter of the hearing. The disclosure shall include the amount and source of each Federal grant (or subgrant thereof) or contract (or sub-contract thereof) related to the subject matter of the hearing and the amount and country of origin of any payment or contract related to the subject matter of the hearing originating with a foreign government. Failure to comply with these disclosure requirements may result in the exclusion of the written testimony from the hearing record and/or the barring of an oral presentation of the testimony.

(b) Minority Witnesses.—When any hearing is conducted by the Committee or any Subcommittee upon any measure or matter, the Minority party Members on the Committee or Subcommittee shall be entitled, upon request to the Chair by a majority of those Minority Members before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the Minority to testify with respect to that measure or matter during at least one day of hearings thereon.

(c) Information for Members.—After announcement of a hearing, the Committee shall make available as soon as practicable to all Members of the Committee a tentative witness list and to the extent practicable the Majority staff shall make publicly available a memorandum explaining the subject matter of the hearing (including relevant legislative reports and other necessary material). In addition, the Chair shall make available to the Members of the Committee any official reports from departments and agencies on the subject matter as they are received.

(d) Subpoenas.—The Committee or a Subcommittee may authorize and issue a subpoena under clause 2(m) of House Rule XI if authorized by a majority of the Members voting. In addition, the Chair of the Committee may authorize and issue subpoenas during any period of time in which the House of Representatives has adjourned for more than three days and, as soon as practicable, the Chair shall notify all Members of the Committee of such action. Subpoenas shall be signed only by the Chair of the Committee, or any Member of the Committee authorized by the Committee, and may be served by any person designated by the Chair or Member.

(e) Oaths.—The Chair of the Committee, the Chairs of the Subcommittees or any Member designated by the Chair may administer oaths to any witness before the Committee. All witnesses appearing in hearings may be administered the following oath by the Chair or his designee prior to receiving the testimony: “Do you solemnly swear or affirm, under penalty of law, that the testimony that you are about to give is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?”

(f) Opening Statements; Questioning of Witnesses.

(1) Opening statements may be made by the Chair and the Ranking Member or their designee. If a witness scheduled to testify at any hearing of the Committee is a constituent of a Member of the Committee, that Member may be recognized for up to 30 seconds to briefly introduce the witness at the hearing.

(2) The questioning of witnesses in Committee and Subcommittee hearings may be initiated by the Chair, followed by the Ranking Minority Member and all other Members alternating between the Majority and Minority parties. In recognizing Members to question witnesses, the Chair shall take into consideration the ratio of the Majority to Minority Members present and shall establish the order of recognition for questioning in a manner so as not to disadvantage the Members of the Majority or the Members of the Minority. A motion is in order to allow designated Majority and Minority party Members to question a witness for a specified period to be equally divided between the Majority and Minority parties. This period shall not exceed one hour in the aggregate.

(g) Claims of Privilege.—Claims of common-law privileges made by witnesses in hearings, or by interviewees or deponents in investigations or inquiries, are applicable only at the discretion of the Chair, subject to appeal to the Committee.

RULE 5. FILING OF COMMITTEE REPORTS

(a) Duty of Chair.—Whenever the Committee authorizes the favorable reporting of a measure from the Committee, the Chair or the Chair’s designee shall report the same to the House of Representatives and shall take all steps necessary to secure its passage without any additional authority needing to be set forth in the motion to report each individual measure. In appropriate cases, the authority set forth in this rule shall extend to moving in accordance with the Rules of the House of Representatives that the House be resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the measure; and to moving in accordance with the Rules of the House of Representatives for the disposition of a Senate measure that is substantially the same as the House measure as reported.

(b) Filing.—A report on a measure which has been approved by the Committee shall be filed within seven calendar days (exclusive of days on which the House of Representatives is not in session) after the day on which there has been filed with the relevant Full Committee staff a written request, signed by a majority of the Members of the Committee, for the reporting of that measure.

Upon the filing with the relevant Full Committee staff of this request, the staff shall transmit immediately to the Chair notice of the filing of that request.

(c) Supplemental, Additional, Dissenting or Minority Views.—Any Member may, if notice is given by any Member at the time a measure or matter is approved by the Committee, file supplemental, additional, dissenting or minority views. These views must be in writing and signed by each Member joining therein and be filed with the Committee Chief Counsel not less than two additional calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays except when the House is in session on those days) of the time the bill or resolution is approved by the Committee. This paragraph shall not preclude the filing of any supplemental report on any measure or matter that may be required for the correction of any technical error in a previous report made by the Committee on that bill or resolution.

(d) Review by Members.—Each Member of the Committee shall be given an opportunity to review each proposed Committee report before it is filed with the Clerk of the House of Representatives. Nothing in this paragraph extends the time allowed for filing supplemental, additional, dissenting or minority views under paragraph (c).

(e) Disclaimer.—All Committee or Subcommittee reports printed and not approved by a majority vote of the Committee or Subcommittee, as appropriate, shall contain the following disclaimer on the cover of the report: “This report has not been officially adopted by the {Committee on Natural Resources} {Subcommittee} and may not therefore necessarily reflect the views of its Members.”

Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations

(1) Primary and general oversight and investigative authority on all activities, policies and programs within the jurisdiction of the Committee under House Rule X.

(b) Full Committee.—The following measures and matters shall be retained at the Full Committee:

(1) Environmental and habitat measures of general applicability, including the National Environmental Policy Act.

(2) All matters regarding insular areas of the United States.

(3) All measures or matters regarding the Freely Associated States.

(4) Cooperative efforts to encourage, enhance and improve international programs for the protection of the environment and the conservation of natural resources otherwise within the jurisdiction of the Full Committee.

(5) All other measures and matters retained by the Full Committee, including those retained under Committee Rule 6(e).

(6) General and continuing oversight and investigative authority over activities, policies and programs within the jurisdiction of the Full Committee.

(c) Ex-officio Members.—The Chair and Ranking Minority Member of the Committee may serve as ex-officio Members of each standing Subcommittee to which the Chair or the Ranking Minority Member have not been assigned. Ex-officio Members shall have the right to fully participate in Subcommittee activities but may not vote and may not be counted in establishing a quorum.

(d) Powers and Duties of Subcommittees.—Each Subcommittee is authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive evidence and report to the Committee on all matters within its jurisdiction. Each Subcommittee shall review and study on a continuing basis the application, administration, execution and effectiveness of those statutes, or parts of statutes, the subject matter of which is within that Subcommittee's jurisdiction; and the organization, operation, and regulations of any Federal agency or entity having responsibilities in or for the administration of such statutes, to determine whether these statutes are being implemented and carried out in accordance with the intent of Congress. Each Subcommittee shall review and study any conditions or circumstances indicating the need for enacting new or supplemental legislation within the jurisdiction of the Subcommittee. Each Subcommittee shall have general and continuing oversight and investigative authority over activities, policies and programs within the jurisdiction of the Subcommittee.

(e) Referral to Subcommittees; Recall.

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2) and for those measures or matters retained at the Full Committee, every legislative measure or other matter referred to the Committee shall be referred to the maximum extent possible to the Subcommittee of jurisdiction within two weeks of the date of its referral to the Committee. If any measure or matter is within or affects the jurisdiction of one or more Subcommittees, the Chair may refer that measure or matter simultaneously to two or more Subcommittees for concurrent consideration or for consideration in sequence subject to appropriate time limits, or divide the matter into two or more parts and refer each part to a Subcommittee.

(2) The Chair, with the approval of a majority of the Majority Members of the Committee, may refer a legislative measure or other matter to a select or special Subcommittee. A legislative measure or other matter referred by the Chair to a Subcommittee may be recalled from the Subcommittee for direct consideration by the Full Committee, or for referral to another Subcommittee, provided Members of the Committee receive one week written notice of the recall and a majority of the Members of the Committee do not object. In addition, a legislative measure or other matter referred by the Chair to a Subcommittee may be recalled from the Subcommittee at any time by majority vote of the Committee for direct consideration by the Full Committee or for referral to another Subcommittee.

(f) Consultation.—Each Subcommittee Chair shall consult with the Chair of the Full Committee prior to setting dates for Subcommittee meetings and hearings with a view towards avoiding whenever possible conflicting Committee and Subcommittee meetings and hearings.

(g) Vacancy.—A vacancy in the membership of a Subcommittee shall not affect the power of the remaining Members to execute the functions of the Subcommittee.

RULE 7. TASK FORCES, SPECIAL OR SELECT SUBCOMMITTEES

(a) Appointment.—The Chair of the Committee is authorized, after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, to appoint Task Forces, or special or select Subcommittees, to carry out the duties and functions of the Committee.

(b) Ex-officio Members.—The Chair and Ranking Minority Member of the Committee may serve as ex-officio Members of each Task Force, or special or select Subcommittee if they are not otherwise Members. Ex-officio Members shall have the right to fully participate in activities but may not vote and may not be counted in establishing a quorum.

(c) Party Ratios.—The ratio of Majority Members to Minority Members, excluding ex-officio Members, on each Task Force, special or select Subcommittee shall be as close as practicable to the ratio on the Full Committee.

(d) Temporary Resignation.—Members can temporarily resign their position on a Subcommittee to serve on a Task Force, special or select Subcommittee without prejudice to the Member's seniority on the Subcommittee.

(e) Chair and Ranking Minority Member.—The Chair of any Task Force, or special or select Subcommittee shall be appointed by the Chair of the Committee. The Ranking Minority Member shall select a Ranking Minority Member for each Task Force, or standing, special or select Subcommittee.

RULE 8. RECOMMENDATION OF CONFEREES

Whenever it becomes necessary to appoint conferees on a particular measure, the Chair shall recommend to the Speaker as conferees those Majority Members primarily responsible for the measure. Similarly, the Ranking Member shall recommend to the Minority Leader as conferees those Minority Members primarily responsible for the measure. The ratio of Majority Members to Minority Members recommended for conferences shall be no greater than the ratio on the Committee.

RULE 9. COMMITTEE RECORDS

(a) Segregation of Records.—All Committee records shall be kept separate and distinct from the office records of individual Committee Members serving as Chairs or Ranking Minority Members. These records shall be the property of the House and all Members shall have access to them in accordance with clause 2(e)(2) of House Rule XI.

(b) Availability.—The Committee shall make available to the public for review at reasonable times in the Committee office transcripts of public meetings and hearings, except those that are unrevised or unedited and intended solely for the use of the Committee.

(c) Archived Records.—Records of the Committee which are deposited with the National Archives shall be made available for public use pursuant to House Rule VII. The Chair shall notify the Ranking Minority Member of any decision, pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of House Rule VII, to withhold, or to provide a time, schedule or condition for availability of any record otherwise available. At the written request of any Member of the Committee, the matter shall be presented to the Committee for a determination and shall be subject to the same notice and quorum requirements for the conduct of business under Committee Rule 3.

(d) Records of Closed Meetings.—Notwithstanding the other provisions of this rule, no records of Committee meetings or hearings which were closed to the public pursuant to the Rules of the House of Representatives shall be released to the public unless the Committee votes to release those records in accordance with the procedure used to close the Committee meeting.

(e) Classified Materials.—All classified materials shall be maintained in an appropriately secured location and shall be released only to authorized persons for review, who shall not remove the material from the Committee offices without the written permission of the Chair.

(f) Committee Information Available for the Public.—In addition to any other requirement of these rules or the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Chair shall cause to be made available publicly in electronic form the following:

(1) a record of the votes on any question on which a recorded vote is taken which shall be posted no later than 24 hours after the vote is taken that shall include:

(i) a copy of the amendment or a detailed description of the motion, order or other proposition; and

(ii) the name of each Member voting for and each Member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, the names of those Members voting present, and the names of any Member not present.

(2) copies of all amendments adopted in Committee by voice vote or unanimous consent within 24 hours of the adoption of the amendment.

(3) the rules of the Committee, once adopted, and any amendments thereto, in accordance with clause 2(a)(2) of House Rule XI.

(4) the statements required under the second sentence of clause 2(g)(5) of House Rule XI, with appropriate redactions to protect the privacy of the witness, which shall be posted no later than one day after the witness appears before the Committee.

RULE 10. COMMITTEE BUDGET AND EXPENSES

(a) Budget.—At the beginning of each Congress, after consultation with the Chair of each Subcommittee and the Ranking Minority Member, the Chair shall present to the Committee for its approval a budget covering the funding required for staff, travel, and miscellaneous expenses.

(b) Expense Resolution.—Upon approval by the Committee of each budget, the Chair, acting pursuant to clause 6 of House Rule X, shall prepare and introduce in the House a supporting expense resolution, and take all action necessary to bring about its approval by the Committee on House Administration and by the House of Representatives.

(c) Amendments.—The Chair shall report to the Committee any amendments to each expense resolution and any related changes in the budget.

(d) Additional Expenses.—Authorization for the payment of additional or unforeseen Committee expenses may be procured by one or more additional expense resolutions processed in the same manner as set out under this rule.

(e) Monthly Reports.—Copies of each monthly report prepared by the Chair for the Committee on House Administration which shows expenditures made during the reporting period and cumulative for the year, anticipated expenditures for the projected Committee program, and detailed information on travel, shall be available to each Member.

RULE 11. COMMITTEE STAFF

(a) Rules and Policies.—Committee staff are subject to the provisions of clause 9 of House Rule X, as well as any written personnel policies the Committee may from time to time adopt.

(b) Majority and Nonpartisan Staff.—The Chair shall appoint, determine the remuneration of, and may remove, the legislative and administrative employees of the Committee not assigned to the Minority. The legislative and administrative staff of the Committee not assigned to the Minority shall be under the general supervision and direction of the Chair, who shall establish and assign the duties and responsibilities of Committee staff and delegate any authority the Chair determines appropriate.

(c) Minority Staff.—The Ranking Minority Member of the Committee shall appoint, determine the remuneration of, and may remove, the legislative and administrative staff assigned to the Minority within the budget approved for those purposes. The legislative and administrative staff assigned to the Minority shall be under the general supervision and direction of the Ranking Minority Member of the Committee who may delegate any authority the Ranking Member determines appropriate.

(d) Availability.—The skills and services of all Committee staff shall be available to all Members of the Committee.

RULE 12. COMMITTEE TRAVEL

In addition to any written travel policies the Committee may from time to time adopt, all travel of Members and staff of the Committee or its Subcommittees to hearings, meetings, conferences and investigations, including all foreign travel, must be authorized by the Full Committee Chair prior to any public notice of the travel and prior to the actual travel. In the case of Minority staff, all travel shall first be approved by the Ranking Minority Member. Funds authorized for the Committee under clauses 6 and 7 of House Rule X are for expenses incurred in the Committee's activities within the United States.

RULE 13. CHANGES TO COMMITTEE RULES

The rules of the Committee may be modified, amended, or repealed by a majority vote of the Committee provided that written notice of the proposed change has been provided to each Member of the Committee prior to the meeting date on which the changes are to be discussed and voted on consistent with Committee Rule 3(a). A change to the rules of the Committee shall be published in the Congressional Record no later than 30 days after its approval and made publicly available in electronic form.

RULE 14. OTHER PROCEDURES

The Chair may establish procedures and take actions as may be necessary to carry out the rules of the Committee or to facilitate the effective administration of the Committee, in accordance with the rules of the Committee and the Rules of the House of Representatives.

April 4, 2019—Hunter Angler

Democratic round-table discussion with key stakeholder organizations within the hunter-angler community to discuss policy priorities for the 116th Congress and offer greater opportunities on how we might work together to advance those issues with which we are already in alignment.

April 13, 2019—New Mexico Environmental Justice

During this roundtable we invited of leaders and practitioners of environmental justice advocacy within the New Mexico region to learn about the issues facing New Mexico Community members.

February 27, 2020—Brazilian Delegation

The House Natural Resources Committee met with Brazilian Congresswomen from different political parties and social sectors to discuss indigenous, environmental, labor rights, and LGBTQ issues in Brazil.

July 30, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: Michigan

Participants discussed class-and race-based inequalities across the state and how the lawmakers' bill—crafted with more than a year of public input—can empower Michiganders and make their lives healthier and safer from pollution.

September 8, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: New Mexico

Speakers highlighted the impacts of fossil fuel extraction and other polluting industries in New Mexico, especially in rural areas with low incomes and high propensities for preexisting health conditions. The event featured a discussion of how the Environmental Justice for All Act would restore power to local communities to protect their environmental quality, increase funding for waste cleanup and economic transition, and restore balance to natural resource extraction laws in communities that have been used for decades as pollution dumping grounds.

September 17, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: Louisiana—Cancer Alley

Community leaders engaged in a discussion on Louisiana's "Cancer Alley," an 85-mile stretch along the Mississippi river that connects Baton Rouge to New Orleans, where the EPA has found seven out of the 10 U.S. census tracts with the highest cancer rates in the country due to the cumulative pollution from 150 chemical plants and refineries in the area. For decades, predominantly Black communities in Cancer Alley have been forced to survive alongside these heavily polluting chemical plants and refineries—and our laws often ignore those cumulative impacts in making permitting decisions or sharing public health resources.

September 18, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: Los Angeles

Los Angeles has the worst ozone pollution of any metropolitan area in the United States, according to the American Lung Association. Within a 20-mile stretch, communities such as Bell, Compton, Huntington Park, Lynwood, and South Gate are wedged between major highways, downtown Los Angeles, and the port of Long Beach. The population of this region is 98 percent people of color, with 78 percent of households living below the federal poverty line. The EPA environmental justice screen places the area in the 100th percentile of pollution exposure. The event examined a variety of environmental justice issues and featured a panel discussion of how the Environmental Justice for All Act would improve quality of life for more than 13 million Americans living in the Los Angeles metro area.

September 23, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: Spelman College

A panel of HBCU's professors and experts discussed the role that historically Black colleges and universities has played and continue to play in educating frontline communities on remedies for environmental racism and segregation. Highlighted in this discussion was how HBCU's are training the next generation of black environmental scientists, and the significance of their #EnviroJusticeNow curriculum. Angeles metro area.

December 9, 2020—Environmental Justice Now Tour: Appalachia

For decades the coal industry has wreaked havoc on the local culture, economy, health and environment of central Appalachia. As coal becomes obsolete, mining corporations are abandoning their responsibility to the region. In their wake they leave behind open pit mines, water pollution, health issues, and uncertainty. But frontline communities of Appalachia are not allowing the mining corporations to leave without a fight. The region boasts a long, proud history of resistance by individuals and organizations working to stop strip mining abuses in the region. Their latest work is to ensure a just transition for their communities. For this event the House Committee on Natural Resources hosted a virtual forum, of community activists from across Appalachia to share how the extractive economy has devastated their communities.

APPENDIX I

SUMMARY OF ACTIVITIES AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS

FULL COMMITTEE

Under Chair Raúl M. Grijalva (D-Ariz.), the Committee made significant progress on landmark environmental justice legislation, introduced wide-ranging climate action bills that update public land and water management for the modern era, and conducted necessary oversight of Trump administration mismanagement of the Interior Department and other federal agencies. The Committee approved a number of landmark conservation bills that became law, including the John D. Dingell Jr. Conservation, Management, and Recreation Act, the Great American Outdoors Act, and the Colorado River Drought Contingency Plan Act.

The Committee prioritized strengthening the government-to-government relationship between the federal government and Native American tribal governments, with special emphasis on improving federal responsiveness to tribal needs during the coronavirus pandemic.

The Committee reported 129 bills, making it the one of the most legislatively active of any committee in the House of Representatives during the 116th Congress. In addition to advancing 49 bills that became law, the Committee passed 102 bills through the House of Representatives that the Republican-controlled Senate failed to consider.

Environmental Justice for All Act

Near the end of the 115th Congress, Chair Grijalva and Rep. A Donald McEachin (D-Va.) began developing the Environmental Justice Working Group—a first-of-its-kind entity bringing together environmental justice advocates from across the country to help develop a comprehensive federal environmental justice bill arising from the grassroots level. That effort included a historic environmental justice convening on Capitol Hill in June of 2019, where advocates and congressional leaders discussed the need for stronger national environmental justice standards. After more than a year of public input, Chair Grijalva and Rep. McEachin introduced the Environmental Justice for All Act on Feb. 27, 2020, with a large group of supporting members and organizations.

Climate Action Legislation

Chair Grijalva and other leaders on the Committee announced at the very beginning of the 116th Congress that addressing climate change would be a top priority. After a series of full Committee and subcommittee hearings on every aspect of climate policy in the Committee's jurisdiction, Chair Grijalva began the process of writing a series of bills to address the climate crisis, resulting in his

December 2019 introduction of the American Public Lands and Waters Climate Solution Act and his October 2020 introduction of the Ocean-Based Climate Solutions Act with Rep. Kathy Castor (D-Fla.) and other supporters.

Helping Puerto Rico

Chair Grijalva visited Puerto Rico twice in 2019 to survey the economic consequences of years of austerity budgeting under the terms of the Puerto Rico Oversight, Management, and Economic Stability (PROMESA) Act, and to see the extent of damage from earthquakes and hurricanes that the Trump administration largely failed to address. Based on hearing testimony and the results of his conversations with Puerto Rican leaders and local officials, Chair Grijalva introduced the Amendments to PROMESA Act in May of 2020.

Oversight of Police Brutality

In response to the June 1, 2020, police crackdown on peaceful protesters at Lafayette Square in Washington, D.C., shortly before President Trump held a notorious photo op in front of St. John's Episcopal Church just north of the White House, the Committee opened an investigation into the role of the U.S. Park Police in that incident and whether the crowd was adequately warned before law enforcement authorized the use of force. Testimony at a series of oversight hearings on the issue, and on Park Police policies more generally—including the blanket refusal to allow agents to wear body cameras—has raised a number of questions that the Committee continues to investigate and will pursue in the 117th Congress.

Protecting Native Women From Violence

Democrats on the Natural Resources Committee made it a priority from the beginning of the 116th Congress to address the long-ignored epidemic of violence against missing and murdered Indigenous women. Informed by expert testimony, the Committee passed Savanna's Act (S. 227) and the Not Invisible Act (S. 982), both of which became law. For the first time, the federal government is now required to account for the number of missing and murdered Native Americans and to establish an advisory commission of survivors and family members. Chair Grijalva has joined a bicameral coalition requesting a Government Accountability Office study of how federal agencies respond to the crisis of missing and murdered Indigenous women on a national scale.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARKS, FORESTS, AND PUBLIC LANDS

Chaired by Rep. Debra Haaland (D-N.M.), the Subcommittee has worked to enhance protections for America's national parks, forests, and public lands while ensuring that they serve all Americans—including historically underserved communities, low-income families, and the Indigenous peoples who have inhabited these lands since time immemorial. Tasked with overseeing America's public lands and the federal agencies responsible for their protection, the Subcommittee has studied the impacts of climate change on our lands and resources and examined how protected public lands can bolster community climate resilience. The Subcommittee's work this Congress—informed by testimony from scientists, tribal officials, state and local governments, industry groups, and resource management experts—has highlighted the role that public land conservation plays in combating the climate crisis, protecting biodiversity, and supporting local economies.

Preserving Wilderness to Combat the Climate Crisis

America's public lands offer significant opportunities to reduce the impacts of climate change, and they should be considered a key component of any national climate adaptation strategy. Studies have shown that public lands already capture nearly 4 percent of all U.S. carbon emissions and are critical to building community resiliency to a changing climate. Protected public lands such as wilderness areas and national parks safeguard ecosystem services, like clean air and water, that improve quality of life; protect critical wildlife habitats; and increase ecological connectivity to preserve biodiversity. However, only 12 percent of U.S. lands currently enjoy statutory protection from development, and the pace of new protections has slowed almost to a stop. Some studies have even suggested that America is losing a football field's worth of natural area to development every 30 seconds. These concerning trends are only exacerbated by the Trump administration's efforts to open an unprecedented amount of public lands to new development and extractive uses.

In early 2019, Congress passed the historic John D. Dingell, Jr. Conservation, Management, and Recreation Act (S. 47), a broad package of more than 100 standalone bills under the Subcommittee's purview that designated approximately 1.3 million acres of new wilderness, established nearly 700,000 acres of recreation and conservation areas, added 621 miles to the National Wild and Scenic River System, and added 42,407 acres to the National Park System. In addition to these significant public land protections, S.47 also permanently authorized the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF), one of the nation's most successful and enduring conservation programs.

After this achievement early in the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee continued to highlight the role that protected public lands can play in responding to the climate crisis while supporting local economic development. The Subcommittee heard testimony from scientists, business owners, public lands users, local officials, and leaders in the outdoor recreation industry on the benefits of protected public lands. The Subcommittee held hearings to examine the impacts of climate change on public lands and on public lands recreation and to discuss how public lands can be managed as part of the climate solution. This work culminated in the House passage of H.R. 2546, the Protecting America's Wilderness Act, a package of six previously individual measures considered by the Subcommittee that would designate approximately 1.3 million acres of wilderness and safeguard more than 1,000 river miles as components of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System in Colorado, California, and Washington. The text of H.R. 2546 was also included in the House-passed National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2021, underscoring the importance of protected public lands in the 116th Congress.

Protecting Treasured and Irreplaceable Landscapes

The Trump administration has made unprecedented efforts to open protected public lands to extractive activities. In fact, President Trump is the only president to have removed more protections from U.S. lands and waters than he put in place—rolling back protections from roughly 1,000 times more land than the administration protected.

Protecting unique and irreplaceable landscapes was a major priority for the Subcommittee in the 116th Congress. Over the past two years, the Subcommittee has held hearings on numerous proposals that would protect some of America’s most iconic landscapes and resources, including bills that would safeguard the Grand Canyon region from the toxic impacts of uranium mining (H.R. 1373), protect the sacred sites and cultural resources of New Mexico’s Chaco Culture National Historical Park (H.R. 2181), and preserve the agricultural and ranching heritage of Colorado’s Thompson Divide (H.R. 823). At these hearings, local elected officials, tribal leaders, public lands users, and resource management experts highlighted the importance of protecting these landscapes and the unique resources they hold. In October 2019, the House of Representatives passed all three bills with bipartisan support.

Enhancing Access to Public Lands

National parks, forests, and public lands belong to all Americans, and throughout this Congress the Subcommittee has worked to ensure that all Americans have equitable access to these cherished places. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 80 percent of Americans live in urban areas and 100 million Americans do not have access to a park within a 10-minute walk from their home. This issue is one of particular concern for low-income and minority communities, with studies showing that these communities often have less access to open spaces than higher income, majority-white communities. Throughout the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee has highlighted the importance of close-to-home outdoor recreational opportunities, protected natural areas, and access to outdoor recreation, while examining proposals to help bridge the park equity gap.

In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee held hearings to address multiple barriers to park access, including improving the recreational permitting process (H.R. 3879), supporting dedicated funding for urban park projects through the Outdoor Recreation Legacy Partnership (H.R. 4512), and providing permanent full funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund (H.R. 3195). The full Natural Resources Committee approved H.R. 3879 and H.R. 3195, with H.R. 4512 passing the House of Representatives as part of H.R. 2, the Moving Forward Act.

One of the Subcommittee’s top priorities in the 116th Congress was permanently protecting LWCF, which uses revenues from offshore oil and gas extraction to conserve public lands and waters across the country. As mentioned above, the 116th Congress approved S. 47, historic legislation that permanently authorized LWCF and ensured that the fully authorized level of $900 million would be deposited into the fund annually. Recognizing that Congress' work to protect this vital program wasn't finished, the Subcommittee built on that accomplishment with the passage of the Great American Outdoors Act, which was signed into law in August 2020. The law ensures that the full $900 million that enters LWCF each year is used to fund conservation projects on the ground in communities across the country. At a time when protecting public lands and wildlife habitats is more important than ever, the Great American Outdoors Act provides increased opportunities for preserving open green spaces and expanding public recreational opportunities.

In addition to securing permanent funding for LWCF, the Great American Outdoors Act approved a longstanding, bipartisan, bicameral priority: funding to address the public lands deferred maintenance backlog. In 2018, federal land management agencies reported a maintenance backlog—including critical infrastructure like roads, bridges, and water systems—approaching $20 billion. This extensive list was the result of nearly a decade of Congressional underfunding for cyclic and annual maintenance. Congress recognized that addressing this significant issue would involve a major initial investment to jump start work on these projects, paired with increased annual funding going forward. The Great American Outdoors Act authorized $1.9 billion annually to be distributed across the federal land management agencies to address some of our most critical public land infrastructure needs. This major investment will support the future of our national parks and public lands, the outdoor recreation economy, and the communities that rely on consistent access to these public resources.

Diversity and Representation on Public Lands

Public lands are a unique part of our shared American heritage. Publicly funded conservation areas and representations of American history must embrace inclusive narratives, imagery, and ideals that accurately represent both our past and our present. As sites that preserve and share the stories of our past, America's public lands should not idolize symbols of hate and bigotry. In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee grappled with this issue by holding hearings on three bills that addressed the removal of Confederate statutes and symbols from public lands (H.R. 970, H.R. 4135 and H.R. 7550). Confederate commemorative works, many of which were established decades after the end of the Civil War during the peak of the Jim Crow era, are an unmistakable reminder of the hate and bigotry that continues to permeate our society, and it is inappropriate for our public lands to continue to glorify these symbols of intolerance. The Natural Resources Committee approved H.R. 970 and H.R. 4135 by voice vote, indicating strong bipartisan support for this issue.

In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee has been committed to ensuring that our national parks and public lands tell a more complete story that is representative of all Americans. Historically, public lands designations have focused on a narrow view of American history that fails to reflect diverse communities and cultures. The Subcommittee has prioritized legislation that recognizes and honors diverse and underrepresented communities, including the Julius Rosenwald and the Rosenwald Schools Act (H.R. 3250), which shares the story of an American philanthropist who provided educational opportunities for more than six hundred thousand African Americans during the Jim Crow era, and the Emancipation National Historic Trail Act (H.R. 434), which celebrates the freedom of the last American slaves. The Natural Resources Committee reported out both bills, with H.R. 434 being signed into law in early 2020.

Oversight of the Trump Administration

One of the Subcommittee's highest priorities has been oversight of the Bureau of Land Management, National Park Service, and the U.S. Forest Service.

- In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee conducted investigations into a number of issues, including:
 - The Trump administration's unprecedented rollback of protections for the Bears Ears National Monument and Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument;
 - The relocation of Bureau of Land Management headquarters to Grand Junction, Colo.;
 - The U.S. Department of Agriculture's decision to exempt Alaska's Tongass National Forest from the 2001 Roadless Rule;
 - The Trump administration's decision to keep national parks open during the longest federal government shutdown in history; and
 - The Trump administration's efforts to open the Grand Canyon region to new uranium mining activities.

Although the Department of the Interior and Department of Agriculture have acknowledged most of the Subcommittee's requests for information, its responses have been inconsistent and inadequate. The administration has sent the Subcommittee hundreds of pages of illegible symbols, irrelevant news clippings, tens of thousands of pages of already public documents and reports, and thousands of pages of unrelated emails and documents. An internal Subcommittee analysis found that of the nearly 4,500 documents DOI provided in response to the Subcommittee's investigation of the administration's monument review process, only 12 percent were related to the Subcommittee's initial request. Throughout the 116th Congress, the administration consistently refused to provide the Subcommittee with relevant documents electronically and in a timely and responsive manner.

By pressing the administration to provide information and background on major policy decisions that impact America's public lands and natural resources, the Subcommittee exposed fraud, waste, and abuse of taxpayer-funded resources. Its investigation into the relocation of BLM headquarters demonstrated a severe lack of analysis or planning behind a move that forced more than 60 percent of BLM career staff based in Washington, D.C., to leave the agency. The Subcommittee also shined a light on questionable uses of funds related to the administration's actions in the Tongass, during the 2019 government shutdown, and for the administration's "Salute to America" celebrations. These investigations revealed the Trump administration's misaligned priorities and highlighted key steps that need to be taken in future Congresses or under future administrations to repair the damage done by the administration and its anti-government, pro-polluter agenda.

WATER, OCEANS, AND WILDLIFE

Chaired by Rep. Jared Huffman (D-Calif.), the Subcommittee worked in the 116th Congress to respond to the effects of climate change and to fight for healthy oceans and reliable water resources for all people, fish and wildlife, and the environments on which they depend.

Addressing Climate Change and Drought in the United States

Climate change-induced drought imperils our nation's ecosystems and threatens to dramatically reduce our nation's drinking, industrial, and agricultural water supplies. The resulting impacts to water supply disproportionately impact tribal and rural communities. The Subcommittee held oversight hearings to address the Trump administration's failure to address climate change and the difficulties it poses for water management. As part of the Natural Resources Committee's historic month-long series of hearings examining climate change, the Subcommittee reviewed the nation's climate change-related water supply challenges, including the effects of shrinking snowpack, reduced precipitation, and rising temperatures.

Taking Action to Prevent Severe Drought in the Colorado River Basin

The Committee is focused on the long-term resiliency of the Colorado River. As the Colorado River Basin experienced its 19th consecutive year of drought, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the Colorado River Drought Contingency Plan, a set of agreements designed to avoid severe shortages through voluntary water reductions and reservoir management strategies. Chair Grijalva introduced the Colorado River Drought Contingency Plan Authorization Act (H.R. 2030), which he shepherded through Congress with a bipartisan, bicameral, seven-state coalition of cosponsors. That legislation, now enacted into law as P.L. 116-14, served as a critical first step to promote water conservation and protect the Colorado River's future. Passage of this legislation safeguards water supplies for 40 million people across seven western states and Mexico while planning continues for managing the long-term impacts of climate change.

Fulfilling Trust Obligations to Provide Water Supplies to Indian Country

The federal government has a trust responsibility to protect tribes' rights to access and use the water resources they are legally entitled to, but many tribal water rights today remain largely undeveloped and unprotected. To help address this legal obligation and improve clean water access, Congress has historically approved and funded Indian water rights settlements, which pay for water infrastructure serving tribal communities and quantify Indian reserved water rights. Negotiated settlements ensure future water security for tribes as well as other water users, which is of paramount importance for regions combating severe drought and water shortages exacerbated by climate change. The Committee approved Chair Grijalva's Indian Water Rights Settlement Extension Act (H.R. 1904), which permanently reauthorizes the Reclamation Water Settlements Fund in order to establish a reliable funding source for existing and future Indian water rights settlements. H.R. 1904 passed the House as part of H.R. 2, the Moving Forward Act and was incorporated in H.R. 7617, a larger package for FY2021 appropriations. The Subcommittee also approved multiple individual tribal water rights settlement bills and helped advance and enact several tribal water rights settlements in H.R. 133, including settlements for the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of Montana, the Pueblos of Nambé, Pojoaque, Tesuque and San Ildefonso, the Navajo Nation, and the Kickapoo Tribe of Kansas.

Investing in Resilient Water Supplies

The Subcommittee advanced legislation to support water supply reliability for communities, tribes, and water users across the western United States. Chair Huffman advanced the Furthering Underutilized Technologies and Unleashing Responsible Expenditures (FUTURE) Western Water Infrastructure and Drought Resiliency Act, which supports the development of more resilient water infrastructure, expands the use of modern water management tools and technologies, and helps disadvantaged areas meet their drinking water needs.

The FUTURE Western Water Infrastructure and Drought Resiliency Act passed the House as part of H.R. 2, the Moving Forward Act. Several other Committee members' bills were also incorporated into H.R. 2, including H.R. 1162, the Water Recycling Investment and Improvement Act, introduced by Rep. Grace Napolitano (D-Calif.). This bill permanently reauthorizes and boosts funding for the Bureau of Reclamation's Title XVI water recycling competitive grant program to promote virtually drought-proof water recycling projects. H.R. 2 also incorporated H.R. 3723, the Desalination Development Act sponsored by Rep. Mike Levin (D-CA), which authorizes increased funding for a Reclamation desalination grant program to support the construction of sustainable water desalination projects.

Five sections from the FUTURE Western Water Infrastructure and Drought Resiliency Act were enacted into law as part of H.R. 133, the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021. Sections 1106, 1107, 1109, 1111 and 1112 of division FF, Title XI of H.R. 133 are identical or modified sections from the FUTURE Western Water Infrastructure and Drought Resiliency Act. Importantly, section 1109 would establish an aquatic ecosystem restoration program at the Department of the Interior that is designed to advance and help fund broadly supported restoration projects like the so-called Two-Basin Solution for the Potter Valley Project in the Russian River and Eel River Basins of California. The proposed Two-Basin Solution is widely supported by water users, tribes, counties, and conservation organizations and it would significantly improve fish health and recovery on the Eel River while providing long term certainty and water supply reliability for Russian River water users. Section 1106 also notably expands eligibility for the Bureau of Reclamation's WaterSMART program to include nongovernmental conservation organizations and natural infrastructure projects.

The Committee also advanced Rep. Xochitl Torres Small's H.R. 4891, the Western Water Security Act, which provides much-needed funding for western water infrastructure while advancing water conservation, water-use efficiency, and environmental restoration in western states. The Subcommittee took steps to support rural communities that lack clean drinking water by advancing H.R. 5347, the Disadvantaged Community Drinking Water Assistance Act introduced by Rep. TJ Cox (D-Calif.). Both bills were incorporated into H.R. 2.

Supporting Water Research and Innovation

The Subcommittee advanced legislation to expand the use of modern water management tools, data, research, and technologies through H.R. 2473, the Securing Access for the central Valley and Enhancing (SAVE) Water Resources Act, and H.R. 3510, the Water Resources Research Amendments Act, both introduced by Rep. Josh Harder (D Calif.). Provisions from both bills were incorporated into H.R. 2.

H.R. 1976, the PFAS Detection Act, directs the U.S. Geological Survey to establish a performance standard for the detection of highly dangerous perfluoroalkyl substances and use that standard to carry out sampling nationwide. A version of that bill was enacted into law as part of S. 1790, the National Defense Authorization Act.

Through H.R. 133, the Subcommittee also helped enact provisions into law from H.R. 2 and Rep. Harder's H.R. 8041 to create a new Snow Water Supply Forecasting program at the Department of the Interior to provide more accurate data about expected runoff that will improve water system operations. H.R. 133 also includes provisions from FUTURE Western Water Infrastructure and Drought Resiliency Act that provide additional support and funding for desalination research at the Bureau of Reclamation.

Examining Collaborative Federal-State Partnerships

The Subcommittee held a hearing to assess ongoing federal and state efforts to restore California's Salton Sea. Conditions at the Salton Sea present major concerns for public health, endangered species, and migratory birds. The Trump administration refused to send a witness or offer written testimony.

The Subcommittee advanced H.R. 3237, the Platte River Recovery Implementation Program Extension Act led by Rep. Joe Neguse (D-Colo.), which authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to continue to participate in a species conservation partnership with Colorado, Nebraska, and Wyoming. The bill was enacted into law as part of H.R. 1865, the Further Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2020.

Initiating Ocean Climate Action

The ocean has absorbed 90 percent of the excess heat and about a third of the surplus carbon that humans have contributed to the atmosphere. While climate change is threatening our oceans and coasts, we have the opportunity to utilize them to absorb and store greenhouse gases while boosting climate resiliency for coastal communities. Implementation of ocean-based climate solutions could deliver 21 percent of the annual greenhouse gas emissions reductions needed by 2050 to keep global temperature rise below 1.5 degrees.

During the 116th Congress, the Natural Resources Committee and the Subcommittee on Water, Oceans, and Wildlife made ocean climate solutions a top priority. The Subcommittee held hearings on ocean and coastal climate impacts and solutions as part of the Natural Resources Committee's climate change hearing series. The Subcommittee championed H.R. 729, the Coastal and Great Lakes Communities Enhancement Act, which passed in the House in December 2019, as well as the groundbreaking Ocean-Based Climate Solutions Act, which Chair Grijalva introduced in October 2020.

H.R. 729, the Coastal and Great Lakes Communities Enhancement Act, is a package of bipartisan bills that protect vulnerable coastal and Great Lakes communities impacted by the climate crisis. Combined, the legislation creates programs to support tribal, state, and local community projects that protect, restore, and preserve coastal zones and working waterfronts; helps communities prepare for and respond to climate change; and uses data to address coastal, ocean, and Great Lakes management. H.R. 729 also protects American commercial and recreational fisheries and the communities that depend on them by authorizing programs that preserve fish habitats and research Great Lakes fisheries management. The bill also strengthens our marine and coastal science and policy workforce by reauthorizing and updating the National Sea Grant College Program.

H.R. 8632, the Ocean-Based Climate Solutions Act, provides a strategic roadmap for ocean climate action and meaningful steps towards protecting the habitat and ecosystems on which humanity depends. This comprehensive bill integrates evidence-based approaches to protect our ocean and coastal communities, promote sustainable job opportunities, and support clean offshore energy while reducing the devastating impacts of the climate crisis. The Ocean Climate Solutions Act prioritizes just and equitable climate solutions for communities of color, low-income communities, tribal and Native Hawaiian communities, and the U.S. Territories and Freely Associated States. The full Committee held a hearing on H.R. 8632 and related bills on November 17, 2020.

Good Governance for the Ocean, Great Lakes, and Coasts

The Subcommittee held hearings and advanced legislation to smartly govern the ocean, Great Lakes, coasts, and fisheries through the best available science and increased stakeholder collaboration and participation. Through intensive collaboration with Senate counterparts, the Committee shepherded many of these bills into law, including the National Sea Grant College Program Amendments Act of 2019 (sponsored by Chair Huffman in the House), the Digital Coast Act, the NOAA Commissioned Officer Corps Amendments Act of 2020, the Great Lakes Environmental Sensitivity Index Act, the Coordinated Ocean Observations and Research Act, the Young Fishermen's Development Act, and the Driftnet Modernization and Bycatch Reduction Act.

The Subcommittee held oversight hearings on several issues, including threats to the critically endangered North Atlantic right whale; ocean plastic pollution; sexual assault and sexual harassment at NOAA; illegal, unreported, and unregulated fishing; and environmental justice in federal grantmaking in the Subcommittee's jurisdiction. The Subcommittee will continue conducting oversight and drafting legislation addressing these important topics.

Protecting Species

The climate crisis, habitat degradation, invasive species, and human development are all dramatically impacting wildlife in the United States and across the globe. The Subcommittee held hearings in May 2019 about the state of wildlife and the impending extinction crisis reported by the Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services. The Subcommittee advanced H.R. 4348 to defend the Endangered Species Act from multiple regulatory attacks by the Trump administration, and approved H.R. 2795 and H.R. 5179 to create a National Wildlife Corridors System and Tribal Wildlife Corridors System. The Subcommittee also approved H.R. 3742 to fund recovery of America's wildlife.

The full Committee worked with the Senate to restore wildlife and protect habitats with the America's Conservation Enhancement Act (S. 3051), which became law in October 2020. This legislative package contains plans to protect and enhance climate-resilient wetlands and fish habitat, help the Chesapeake Bay region prepare for and adapt to climate change, address issues in the hunting and angling communities, and prevent conflicts between predators, humans, and livestock. It also contains provisions to combat invasive species as well as chronic wasting disease in deer and other animals.

Throughout the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee advanced legislation to protect vulnerable species and species groups. On December 3, the House passed H.R. 1380, the Big Cat Public Safety Act, which ends the private ownership and sale of big cats such as lions, tigers, leopards, cougars, and more. The Subcommittee held a hearing on H.R. 2245, the CECIL Act, to address trophy hunting issues, and another on H.R. 2532 to protect grizzly bear populations for tribal heritage; Chair Grijalva sponsored both bills. The Subcommittee also advanced Representative Lowenthal's legislation to reaffirm the interpretation of "incidental take" in the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, which would ensure accountability for migratory bird deaths related to industrial activity, and establish a regulatory scheme for responsible permitting. A version of H.R. 6761, Chair Grijalva's Murder Hornet Eradication Act, was included in the Water Resources Development Act.

Human Conflicts Related to Wildlife

In response to the coronavirus pandemic, the Subcommittee introduced legislation to strengthen wildlife-borne disease prevention efforts, which passed the House as part of H.R. 6800, the HEROES Act. The legislation bans imports of and trade in risky species, requires study of wildlife pathogens, builds cooperation and technical capacity for wildlife disease surveillance among states, tribes, and insular territories, and builds capacity for foreign governments to monitor wildlife disease and limit the trade of wildlife that transmit disease. The Committee also investigated, in close coordination with Republican lawmakers and staff, World Wildlife Fund's history of human rights abuses related to federal conservation grants and began drafting legislation to address this problem.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND MINERAL RESOURCES

Chaired by Rep. Alan Lowenthal (D-Calif.), the Subcommittee this Congress has worked to address the greatest economic, public health, national security, and environmental challenge of our time: climate change. For more than a century, federal land management laws and regulations have prioritized fossil fuel extraction over other land uses, an imbalance exacerbated by the Trump administration. In recent decades, scientific evidence has made it clear that anthropogenic greenhouse gas emissions are warming the planet and leading to more frequent heat waves, more intense storms, and more extreme wildfires, among other impacts.

The Subcommittee oversees the extraction of coal, oil and gas from public lands and waters, which are responsible for nearly a quarter of the nation's carbon dioxide emissions each year. The Subcommittee's work this Congress has highlighted America's need to reduce fossil fuel extraction and expand renewable energy generation across the western U.S. and in federal waters. The Subcommittee heard from expert witnesses about how public lands can support economy-wide efforts to achieve net-zero emissions by mid-century and held hearings that provided the foundation for H.R. 5435, Chairman Grijalva's bill to require public lands and waters to achieve net-zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2040. Climate change is the defining issue of our time, and the Subcommittee tackled this challenge through legislation and oversight at every opportunity.

Oil and Gas Development

In 2019, roughly 22 percent of U.S. oil production and 12 percent of gas production came from federal land. In addition to harming the climate, the extraction, processing, and transportation of oil and gas resources on public lands degrades air quality and damages water resources, fragments wildlife habitat, and impairs the health of local communities.

In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee held a series of hearings exploring the ways oil and gas development can harm local communities. This included an April 2019 field hearing in New Mexico where Members of Congress heard from citizens directly impacted by extraction and viewed real-time methane leaks using an infrared camera. Over the past two years, the Subcommittee held hearings on numerous bills that would overhaul the federal onshore oil and gas program, including reforms to leasing (H.R. 3225), bonding (H.R. 4346), data transparency (H.R. 5636), fiscal terms (H.R. 4364), and methane emissions (H.R. 2711). The Subcommittee also held hearings examining how oil and gas extraction can encroach upon and disrupt tribal and indigenous communities, including drilling near Chaco Culture National Historical Park (H.R. 2181) and in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (H.R. 1146).

Protecting coastal communities from new oil and gas drilling in federal waters was a major focus for the Subcommittee in the 116th Congress. In early 2019, the Subcommittee held a hearing on bipartisan bills (H.R. 1941 and H.R. 205) to prevent drilling along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the eastern Gulf of Mexico. Local officials, business owners, outdoor recreators, and conservationists all urged the Subcommittee to consider the importance of protecting America's coasts. In September 2019, both bills passed the House of Representatives with bipartisan support, underscoring the importance of these issues in the 116th Congress.

Renewable Energy Production

The urgent need to address climate change demands a rapid transition away from fossil fuels and towards an economy powered by clean energy. Renewable energy resources on public lands and waters must play a leading role in driving this transition. Throughout the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee highlighted the many ways public lands can propel the country's transition to a clean energy economy while honoring community input, protecting sensitive environments, and supporting job creation in local communities.

Public lands contain some of the sunniest, windiest and most geologically active places in the country, but wind and solar energy production on public lands make up less than 5 percent of the nation's total installed capacity. In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee heard testimony from the renewable energy industry, states, counties, and environmental groups on ways to responsibly increase development of these clean energy resources. This work culminated in the markup of H.R. 3794, the Public Land Renewable Energy Development Act, a bipartisan bill that improves the permitting process, shares renewable energy revenues with states and counties, and directs a portion of revenues to projects protecting and restoring fish and wildlife habitat and improving access for hunting, fishing, and other outdoor recreational activities. Key sections of H.R. 3794 passed the House as part of H.R. 2, the Moving Forward Act, and H.R. 4447, the Clean Economy Jobs and Innovation Act.

Offshore wind farms are a potentially enormous source of sustainable, carbon-free energy to power coastal regions and create new jobs. While the U.S. offshore wind technical potential is roughly double the entire country's electricity consumption, to date there are only seven installed turbines, five of which are in state waters. The Subcommittee held a series of hearings in the 116th Congress to highlight the nation's vast offshore wind potential and ways to spur economic development and job creation around this fast-growing industry. The Subcommittee held a field hearing in Wildwood, N.J., where lawmakers heard from state and local officials, labor unions, commercial and recreational fishermen, and the wind industry about the considerable economic and environmental potential of offshore wind development. The Subcommittee also advanced H.R. 3068, the Offshore Wind Jobs and Opportunity Act, a bill to create a new offshore wind workforce development grant program at the Department of the Interior. Like H.R. 3794, H.R. 3068 passed the House as part of both H.R. 2 and H.R. 4447. The Subcommittee also worked closely with the Water, Oceans, and Wildlife Subcommittee on H.R. 8632, the Ocean-Based Climate Solutions Act, which would set the first ever national offshore wind goal: permitting at least 12.5 gigawatts of offshore wind by 2025 and at least 25 gigawatts by 2030.

Hardrock Mining

For 148 years, the mining of hardrock minerals on public lands has been carried out under the Mining Law of 1872. Written to promote western settlement in the era of the pick and shovel prospector, the Mining Law is based on state and local mining customs, laws and regulations that arose during the California gold rush of 1848. In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee held hearings and passed legislation to reform the nation's antiquated mining law and examine ways to bring the nation's hardrock minerals policy into the 21st century.

Unlike nearly every other country in the world, the United States operates on an open-access basis for hardrock minerals on public lands rather than a leasing system. Mining of minerals from federal lands occurs without any federal royalty being paid back to the American people. H.R. 2579, the Hardrock Leasing and Reclamation Act, replaces the current obsolete system with a modern leasing system designed to protect our economy and environment. The bill establishes a 12.5 percent royalty on new mining operations—the same amount paid by oil and gas drillers—and an 8 percent royalty on existing operations, except for miners with less than $50,000 in mining income. H.R. 2579 also eliminates the priority use status that mining currently enjoys on public lands, leveling the playing field with all other uses of public lands such as grazing, hunting, and energy development. This allows mining to be managed through existing land-use planning processes. The legislation requires meaningful tribal consultation, makes certain special places permanently off limits to hardrock mining, and establishes strong new reclamation standards and bonding requirements to make sure taxpayers aren't left paying to clean up abandoned mine sites.

Coal Mining and Development

While coal accounted for nearly 80 percent of total energy consumption in the United States at the beginning of the 20th century, its usage has since declined significantly, and domestic production has been declining considerably since 2008. As coal is displaced by renewable energy and fossil gas, the Committee aims to ensure the environmentally sound cleanup of abandoned mines and a smooth economic transition for communities traditionally dependent on coal mining.

In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee held hearings on multiple aspects of coal mining and development, including how best to reform the federal coal program, how to mitigate the health effects of mountaintop removal mining in Appalachia (H.R. 2050), and how to protect miners' healthcare and pensions (H.R. 934 & H.R. 935). One of the Subcommittee's highest priorities is reauthorizing the Abandoned Mine Land (AML) fund (H.R. 4248), which uses fees paid by current coal mining companies to reclaim previously abandoned coal mines, and passing the RECLAIM Act

(H.R. 2156), which focuses the use of the AML fund on reclamation that supports economic revitalization, diversification, and development in economically distressed mining communities. The Natural Resources Committee reported out both bills, and portions of both passed the House of Representatives in H.R. 2, the Moving Forward Act.

Oversight of the Trump Administration

One of the Subcommittee's highest priorities this Congress has been to conduct oversight over the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management (BOEM), the Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement (BSEE), the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE), and energy and minerals activities of the U.S. Forest Service (USFS).

In the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee conducted investigations into a number of issues, including:

- The Trump administration's reinstatement of leases for an environmentally hazardous copper sulfide mine at the edge of the Boundary Waters Wilderness Canoe Area;
- Former Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke's decision to exempt Florida, via tweet, from the 2019–2025 Outer Continental Shelf 5-year leasing program after meeting with the state's governor;
- The inappropriate inclusion of uranium in the critical minerals list under E.O. 13817;
- OSMRE's abrupt cancellation of a National Academy of Sciences study on the health effects of mountaintop removal coal mining in Appalachia; and
- The secret manipulation by political officials of career expert recommendations in developing a weakened Well Control Rule at BSEE.

While DOI has acknowledged most of the Subcommittee's requests for information, their responses have been inconsistent and woefully insufficient. DOI has sent the Committee entirely redacted documents, tens of thousands of pages of already public documents and reports, hundreds of pages of illegible symbols, and irrelevant news clippings. In July 2020, DOI sent the Subcommittee 38 boxes of documents in response to the subcommittee's investigation of the Well Control Rule, of which roughly 37 boxes—over 100,000 pages—were public comments, public reports, books widely available on websites, duplicates, or fully redacted. Throughout this Congress, DOI provided inconsistent and unpersuasive excuses for consistently refusing to provide relevant documents electronically and in a timely manner.

SUBCOMMITTEE FOR INDIGENOUS PEOPLES OF THE UNITED STATES

Since transitioning to the Majority at the start of the 116th Congress, Democrats have carved out larger spaces for Indigenous issues in the House of Representatives and given them greater legislative and oversight attention. With this goal in mind, Natural Resources Committee Chair Raúl M. Grijalva (D-Ariz.) established the Subcommittee for Indigenous Peoples of the United States in January 2019. Unlike its predecessor in the 115th Congress, the Subcommittee on Indian, Insular, and Alaska Native Affairs, the Subcommittee for Indigenous Peoples of the United States is a stand-alone subcommittee that maintains exclusive jurisdiction over American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian issues in the House.

Chaired by Representative Ruben Gallego (D-Ariz.), the Subcommittee for Indigenous Peoples of the United States empowers Indigenous communities by fighting to uphold tribal sovereignty and strengthen tribal self-governance. The Subcommittee helped ensure that the Department of the Interior, the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Department of Justice adequately served Indian Country by critically examining Indigenous issues. The Subcommittee conducted oversight hearings on education, public safety, health, infrastructure, climate change, and the federal trust responsibility in Indian Country. The Subcommittee passed legislation to protect and preserve tribal lands, reaffirm tribal sovereignty and enhance self-determination, and safeguard the health and well-being of tribal peoples.

Tribal Sovereignty and the Federal Trust Responsibility

The present-day government-to-government relationship that exists between tribal nations and the federal government is largely shaped by Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution. This relationship, which is commonly referred to as the “federal trust responsibility,” includes a charge to the federal government to support the general welfare of tribal nations, their lands and resources, and their right to tribal self-governance in perpetuity.

Trust Lands and The Carcieri Fix

The 1934 Indian Reorganization Act (IRA) is a comprehensive federal law that provides the basis of federal legislation concerning Indian affairs. Part of the Act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to take land into trust for tribal nations in order to “. . . conserve and develop Indian lands and resources” and to rehabilitate Indian economic life. Trust land is not taxable and is subject to tribal regulation, with no, or limited, state and local regulatory jurisdiction.

Acquisition of trust land for the benefit of Indian tribes is essential to tribal self-determination and economic development and protects tribal lands for future generations. To that end, the Subcommittee acted on numerous bills that would place new lands into trust, or reaffirm the status of current trust lands, for the benefit of tribal communities (H.R. 1312, H.R. 3160, H.R. 1031, H.R. 2961, H.R. 4059, H.R. 4495, H.R. 7119, and H.R. 733/S. 199).

Early on, the Subcommittee devoted attention to the Supreme Court’s 2009 Carcieri v. Salazar decision, which has created ongoing complications for the federal trust responsibility. In April 2019, the Subcommittee reviewed H.R. 375, which aims to restore clarity and stability to the land-into-trust process by legislatively fixing the legal ambiguities stemming from the Carcieri decision. Under its terms, the Secretary of the Interior would be authorized to place land into trust for all tribal nations, regardless of the date on which they were federally recognized. In addition, the Subcommittee examined H.R. 312, which reaffirms the trust status of the lands of the Mashpee Wampanoag Tribe in Massachusetts. Due to the effects of the Carcieri decision, the Tribe's eligibility for transfers of lands became subject to multiple legal suits that threatened to permanently dissolve the Tribe. Shortly after the Subcommittee's legislative hearing on these two bills, they were both passed out of the House of Representatives.

Equitable Compensation and Federal Recognition

The Subcommittee held legislative hearings on H.R. 396, which permanently resolves the Miami Tribe of Oklahoma's treaty-based land claim to the Wabash River watershed in Illinois and removes the cloud on title that exists for the current landowners; S. 216, which compensates the Spokane Tribe of Indians for the use of tribal lands in the construction of the Grand Coulee Dam; H.R. 1803/S. 832, which will nullify and render moot for the purposes of legal precedent the fraudulent supplemental treaty of 1865 between the federal government and the Confederated Tribes and Bands of Indians of Middle Oregon; and S. 46, which repeals the Klamath Tribe Judgement Fund Act and restores the Tribe's ability to exercise its sovereign authority over its funds. In addition to these bills, the Subcommittee reviewed H.R. 1964, which provides federal recognition to the Lumbee Tribe of North Carolina, and H.R. 297/S. 51, which provides federal recognition to the Little Shell Tribe of Chippewa Indians. H.R. 1803/S. 832, S. 216 and H.R. 297/S. 51 were all enacted into law.

Tribal Consultation

To strengthen the federal trust responsibility, the Subcommittee drafted legislation that expands the federal government's tribal consultation guidelines. In April 2019, the Subcommittee held a legislative hearing on Chair Grijalva's RESPECT Act, which codifies tribal consultation requirements for federal projects, activities, and regulations that have tribal impacts. Later that year, the Subcommittee also reviewed H.R. 3846, which establishes consultation frameworks between the federal government and tribal working groups to prevent the trafficking of cultural patrimony.

Alongside this legislation, the Subcommittee also examined the detrimental consequences that arise when the federal government fails to engage in meaningful tribal consultation. In January 2020, Chair Grijalva traveled to Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument to see firsthand how the Trump administration's abuse of Section 102 of the REAL ID Act of 2005 resulted in the destruction of the Tohono O'odham Nation's sacred sites along the U.S.-Mexico border. That same month, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing where Tohono O'odham Nation Chairman Ned Norris Jr. explained how mandatory tribal consultation would have changed the outcome of the Nation's interactions with the federal government. Building on this work, the Subcommittee held a second oversight hearing in March 2020 to reviewed the lack of federal tribal consultation in implementing the Southeastern Arizona Land Exchange and the resulting damage that Resolution Copper's proposed mining operations will inflict on Oak Flat and Apache Leap.

Climate Change

Climate change has caused the warming of our air and oceans, the melting of our glaciers and the steady rise of our sea levels, resulting in increasingly frequent and severe storms, droughts, floods, and wildfires. Indigenous communities in particular have been disproportionately impacted by these trends, as climate change poses a direct threat to their traditional ways of life and culturally significant sites. Tribal communities continue to face institutional barriers that limit their access to programs and funding streams that would otherwise help them recover from and proactively plan against natural disasters. The Subcommittee's first-ever hearing, in February 2019, focused on the oversight of climate change impacts in Indian Country.

Tribal Infrastructure

The condition of roads, buildings, and bridges on tribal lands has long been a heated topic in Indian Country. Tribal transportation programs have been historically underfunded and ignored by presidential administrations of both parties. The Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on tribal infrastructure in July 2019 to ensure that these programs would no longer be afterthoughts when Congress drafts major pieces of transportation and infrastructure legislation.

Following this work, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing in November 2019 on the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights' Broken Promises: Continuing Funding Shortfall for Native Americans report. The report found that programs designed to support the social and economic wellbeing of tribal communities remain chronically underfunded and inefficiently structured, leaving basic needs unmet and contributing to the vast inequities that exist between Indigenous populations and the larger American population. To learn more about how to resolve these disparities, the Subcommittee heard from tribal leaders and advocates about their experiences and recommendations for infrastructure improvements.

Tribal Justice and Public Safety

Indigenous women in the United States face murder rates at 10 times the national average, yet these cases of violence often go uninvestigated and unprosecuted. While this trend has been called a "silent" crisis, the Subcommittee worked hard to ensure that the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women (MMIW) crisis remained at the center of major policy discussions. In 2019, Chair Grijalva helped jumpstart policy efforts to combat the MMIW crisis by passing two bipartisan amendments to the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2019. That same year, the Subcommittee held several hearings to heighten congressional awareness on the issue and to give Indigenous women the opportunity to share their policy recommendations, which established the need for a widely accessible data collection system that can quantify the current number of MMIW cases.

The exposure that followed these hearings led to the passage of two bills that address the MMIW crisis—S. 227 and S. 982—in the House of Representatives. These bills require the federal government to account for the number of missing and murdered Native Americans and to establish an advisory commission of survivors and family members. Alongside these successes, Chair Grijalva pushed for greater federal accountability and joined a bicameral coalition that asked the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to examine how federal agencies respond to the MMIW crisis on a national scale.

Coronavirus Pandemic Response

Following the outbreak of the coronavirus pandemic, the Subcommittee worked hard to ensure that tribal communities remained up to date on public health information. In March 2020, the Subcommittee launched an online coronavirus resource center for Indian Country that contained information on federal medical resources, congressional relief packages, and the Subcommittee's ongoing efforts to hold the Trump administration accountable for its poor response to the virus. The new resource center housed a survey response form that allowed the Subcommittee to hear directly from tribal leaders about what they were seeing on the ground and the resources they needed. The Subcommittee used survey responses to inform the tribal provisions included in the CARES Act, which became law on March 27, 2020. These measures provided an $8 billion Coronavirus Relief Fund for tribal governments and additional direct funding lines to the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), Bureau of Indian Education (BIE), and the Indian Health Service (IHS).

From April to October 2020, the Subcommittee held several online forums to hear directly from community leaders, organizations, and citizens from tribal nations about their experiences with pandemic response efforts. Through witness testimony, the Subcommittee received vital information about the Trump administration's disbursement delays for the CARES Act relief funds to tribal governments, the tribal data leaks within the Department of the Interior, and the political motivations behind the administration's decision to reopen BIE schools for in-person instruction.

Tribal Education

In May 2019, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing on the BIE's Chemawa Indian School. Established in the 1870s, the Chemawa Indian School exemplified the federal government's policy of forcibly separating Indigenous children from their families so that they could be Christianized. Many serious problems still exist at the School. In the past decade alone, there have been numerous reports from concerned teachers, parents, and non-profit organizations of student sexual assault, neglect, and death. The Subcommittee called a member of the Chemawa Indian School administration and a representative from BIE to testify about and respond to these allegations. The Subcommittee also held legislative hearings on bills focused on improving aspects of Native education, including H.R. 895 and H.R. 2414. Due to the Subcommittee's focus on H.R. 2414, the legislation successfully became law in December 2019.

Tribal Health

During the Trump administration's 2019 partial government shutdown, the lack of advance appropriations for tribal social services resulted in the loss of critical infrastructural programs, as well as the jobs associated with them, during the coldest months of the year. To make matters worse, many tribal communities could no longer rely upon federal healthcare providers, as the sudden cut in funding resulted in IHS delays or stoppages of care. In the interest of preventing situations like this, the Subcommittee held a dual oversight-legislative hearing in September 2019 on H.R. 1128 and H.R. 1135, both of which authorize advance appropriations to IHS and guarantee the continuation of IHS services in the event of a government shutdown. In addition to the advance appropriations legislation, the Subcommittee held hearings on legislation that will improve health care access for Native veterans (H.R. 4153 and H.R. 6237), as well as legislation to support the mission of urban Indian health organizations (H.R. 6535). Both H.R. 4153 and H.R. 6237 were passed by the House of Representatives.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT AND INVESTIGATIONS

Hearings handled by or originating in the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations (O&I) were chaired by Rep. TJ Cox (D-Calif.) at the Subcommittee level and Rep. Ral M. Grijalva (D-Ariz.) at the full Committee level. In the 116th Congress, O&I focused on holding the Trump administration accountable to the American people by conducting oversight and investigations of the Department of the Interior (DOI) and its bureaus as an essential part of the legislative process. The Subcommittee was committed to rooting out waste, fraud, and abuse, fact-checking claims made as part of attempts to weaken federal environmental laws, investigating the sources and impacts of climate change, and ensuring our policies are based on the best available science that is free of conflicts of interest.

Department of the Interior Reorganization

Early in the Trump administration, former Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke began a wide-ranging DOI reorganization that included changes in lines of responsibility and communication for every agency, and Interior Secretary David Bernhardt continued that effort upon taking Zinke's place. The Committee requested information about the basis for this reorganization in several letters from Chair Raúl M. Grijalva (D-Ariz.) to Secretary Bernhardt; three budget hearings with Secretary Bernhardt and then-Principal Deputy Secretary of Policy, Management, and Budget, Scott Cameron; and a hearing in the Subcommittee about the reasons for and impacts of the reorganization. Members repeatedly asked DOI for any substantive analysis related to need, costs, timelines, or any other details justifying the reorganization. Many of the requests were bipartisan. None were completely fulfilled.

As a part of DOI's unjustified reorganization plans, the Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) Washington, D.C.-based staff were relocated to a hastily established new headquarters in Grand Junction, Colo., and offices elsewhere across the western United States.

Subcommittee staff found that the relocation of BLM headquarters to Grand Junction would disproportionately impact the agency's Black employees, of which nearly 41 percent were located in Washington, D.C. Neither DOI nor BLM conducted a disparate impact analysis of the planned relocation, leaving the agency vulnerable to legal liability under the Civil Rights Act. The Committee sent letters to Secretary Bernhardt and BLM acting director William Pendley highlighting these disparate impact concerns. The responses were insufficient or failed to answer questions at all. In a briefing with DOI, oversight staff uncovered that BLM failed to fulfill its legal obligation to consult tribal nations about BLM relocation plans. Chair Grijalva asked the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to examine the process through which the BLM relocation took place. The GAO found that BLM had "not substantially followed key practices for effective agency reforms relevant to relocating employees," including creating measures for success, an implementation plan, or a strategic workforce plan.

Sexual Harassment and Discrimination at the Department of the Interior

Since the beginning of the 116th Congress, the Subcommittee has been dedicated to addressing patterns of documented abuses and discrimination at agencies in the Committee's jurisdiction. The Obama administration started efforts to address sexual harassment at the National Park Service and across DOI, in part by conducting an unprecedented Department-wide survey of all employees. The survey found that nearly 1 out of every 10 employees (8 percent) reported being sexually harassed over the previous year. As good managers know, fully addressing harassment in an organization requires more than good policies and procedures. Leadership's commitment to a culture of respect, inclusivity, safety, and transparency is imperative. Employees must be actively engaged in solutions to address harassment. Public accounts and previous testimony from former and current DOI employees have shown that this is not currently the case—they have described a culture of fear, intimidation, and secrecy under current leadership. DOI must improve its culture to fully tackle its harassment problem. Chair Cox led a hearing on sexual harassment at DOI in February 2019 to support growing calls to improve internal policies on prevention and mitigation.

Sexual assault and sexual harassment (SASH) are also major issues for those who work for or on behalf of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). NOAA has made laudable efforts to address SASH issues. However, recent internal evaluations demonstrate that the problem is persistent and requires additional policies and resources. In February 2020, the Subcommittee held an oversight hearing to ensure progress was being made and that the agency prioritized improving the agency's culture. Chair Grijalva called on President Trump to withdraw his nomination of Barry Myers to lead NOAA based on his history of sexual harassment and producing a hostile work environment in a former job.

Freedom of Information Act

An unprecedented backlog of information and document requests filed through the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) developed shortly after the arrival of the Trump administration. Instead of increasing processing capacity to meet the demand, DOI allowed bureaus to increase response times for requests, limit the number and quality of responses, and deny requests considered “burdensome.” DOI similarly proposed a draft rule that would further slow response times and allow them to pick and choose which requests to fill. After opposition from the Committee and others in the House and Senate, the most onerous provisions of the draft rule were removed from the final rule. Chairs Grijalva and Cox sent letters to Secretary Bernhardt requesting documents describing each stage of DOI’s FOIA procedures. Both chairs joined the Committee on Oversight and Reform in a successful request to the Committee on Appropriations for increased funding to DOI to hire more staff to address the FOIA request backlog.

Villages at Vigneto

The Subcommittee opened an investigation into federal agency decision-making regarding El Dorado Holdings, Inc.’s proposed Villages of Vigneto development in Arizona. The proposed development, which requires an extensive environmental impact analysis, would remove substantial amounts of groundwater from the ecologically fragile San Pedro Riparian National Conservation Area. The founder and chairman of El Dorado Holdings, Inc., Mike Ingram, has claimed that he met with Secretary Bernhardt in Billings, Mont., to discuss the Vigneto development. Less than two months later, Mr. Ingram made a one-time, out-of-cycle $10,000 donation to the Trump Victory super PAC. A whistleblower at the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service who played a major role in the Vigneto approval process, and who had initially rejected the project, revealed that he got a phone call from a lawyer in the DOI Solicitor’s Office advising him that “a high-level politico” believed he had made the wrong decision about Vigneto and he would be “wise to reconsider it.” He reversed his prior decision. The investigation is ongoing.

WWF and International Wildlife Conservation

Following reports of alleged human rights violations—including torture, sexual assault, and extrajudicial killings—by rangers and paramilitary forces working on behalf of wildlife conservation organizations supported by the U.S. government, Chair Grijalva led a request with Ranking Member Rob Bishop (R-Utah) to GAO to examine federal funding to the organizations involved. The report, released in October 2020, revealed the need for more safeguards to ensure taxpayer money does not support human rights abuses by park rangers overseas. The Committee’s efforts led DOI to implement changes to its funding processes and oversight mechanisms for international conservation grants, though many changes ultimately undermined conservation projects and had no nexus to human rights violations. The investigation supported legislative efforts to protect human rights in conservation areas.

Lafayette Square Investigation

Immediately following the June 1, 2020, police crackdown against peaceful protesters at Lafayette Square Park in Washington, D.C., when President Donald Trump held a now infamous photo opportunity at St. John's Episcopal Church, Chair Grijalva and Vice Chair Deb Haaland requested a briefing from Acting Chief of the U.S. Park Police (USPP) Gregory T. Monahan regarding USPP's role in the incident. The first of two full Committee hearings on the issue featured witnesses who were at the scene—or supported those at the scene—describing the abuses they faced by USPP and partner law enforcement agencies. At the second hearing, Adam DeMarco, a whistleblower who was the highest-ranking National Guardsman on site that day, gave testimony that directly contradicted key portions of testimony offered by Acting Chief Monahan, who appeared under threat of subpoena. A letter from Chair Grijalva to Secretary Bernhardt requested documents and interviews to improve the Committee's understanding of the events, neither of which DOI has provided. The investigation is ongoing.

Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion at the Department of the Interior

Chair Cox led a hearing in September 2020 on the historical barriers to diversity, equity, and inclusion within DOI, highlighting major disparities at the National Park Service. The hearing featured a member discussion with witnesses on the Trump administration's lack of commitment to diversity and appointment of racist and bigoted individuals as heads of bureaus within DOI. The administration declined to send a witness.

DOI Law Enforcement Agencies and Body Cameras

Since the shooting of unarmed civilian Bijan Ghaisar in 2017 by two USPP officers just outside Washington, D.C., Chair Grijalva has insisted that USPP join its sister law enforcement agencies at DOI in using body-worn cameras and dashboard cameras to document encounters with civilians. When Acting Chief Monahan appeared as a witness during the full Committee hearing on the June 1 Lafayette Square incident, he suggested in response to member questions that body-worn cameras would be considered for future use. In September 2020, the Subcommittee held a hearing on the importance of using body cameras, featuring testimony from Kelly Ghaisar, mother of Bijan Ghaisar and a longtime advocate for police reform. The administration declined to send a witness. Since then, O&I staff have worked with law enforcement organizations to ensure the creation and enforcement of body-worn camera policies.

DOI Refusal to Cooperate with Oversight

Throughout the 116th Congress, requests for information, interviews, and documents from the Trump administration were typically met with noncompliance or silence. The administration repeatedly refused to send witnesses to oversight hearings, or sent witnesses that were not able to answer questions they knew were coming. The overall pattern of obstruction and bad faith in responding to Committee oversight was documented in a March 2020 letter to Secretary Bernhardt detailing the various letters and requests DOI had left unanswered. The Committee passed a resolution authorizing the Chair to issue subpoenas under certain circumstances in response to the administration's nearly unprecedented stonewalling.

Bernhardt Calendars

Shortly after taking the top DOI job, Secretary Bernhardt stopped providing the full contents of his calendars to the public, which made it difficult for Americans to know whether he was violating ethics regulations or the terms of his ethics agreement. Versions of his calendars and daily schedules obtained through FOIA requests omitted important meetings between the Secretary and former clients on his recusal list known to have occurred through other sources of information. A joint investigation with the Committee on Oversight and Reform found that nobody at DOI would accept responsibility for ordering changes to calendar disclosures.

Border Wall

The Committee held a forum in January 2019 to learn from panelists how the construction of a wall and associated infrastructure by the Trump administration along the U.S.-Mexico border violated tribal sovereignty, cost Americans access to land through the overzealous use of eminent domain, and destroyed endangered species habitats.

Behind the Curtain and Stepping Up Forums

As the whole country struggled against the coronavirus pandemic, the Trump administration and its staff focused its limited resources on helping polluters slash environmental protections. In continuing its oversight duties during the pandemic, the Subcommittee held two remote oversight forums on the topic: (1) Behind the Curtain, led by a panel of experts to investigate the administration's fossil fuel giveaway agenda during the pandemic; and (2) Stepping Up: Communities Protecting Themselves and the Environment in the Pandemic Era, where Committee members heard from communities fighting back against polluting industries and regulation rollbacks by the Trump administration during the pandemic.

OFFICE OF INSULAR AFFAIRS INSULAR

Affairs hearings, which are held at the Full committee level, were chaired by Committee Vice Chair Gregorio Kilili Sablan (I-MP), except for those involving Puerto Rico. For the 116th Congress, the Office of Insular Affairs (OIA) focused its efforts on reviewing the fundamental issues facing the U.S. Territories and Freely Associated States, including support and development of self-government and self-determination; access to federal programs; accountability of federal funds; implementation and enforcement of federal laws; economic development and self-sufficiency through the private sector; implementation and funding for the Compacts of Free Association; and management of limited land and water resources.

Under the direction of Chair Raúl M. Grijalva (D–Ariz.), OIA focused considerable effort on addressing the inequities faced by the people and government of Puerto Rico during post-disaster rebuilding efforts after the devastation caused by major earthquakes and by hurricanes Irma and Maria. OIA also prioritized oversight of the impacts of fiscal austerity stemming from the Puerto Rico, Oversight, Management and Economic Accountability Act (PROMESA).
